SAMAVAYA

WICSA is incredibly excited to introduce SAMAVAYA,
Western's third annual South-Asian fashion show.

SAMAVAYA, which means "unity and togetherness" in Sanskrit, promises to captivate audiences by exhibiting the five elements drawn from the Pancha Maha-Butas.

The idea for the theme emerged after thinking about how the divisions between South Asian communities and Canada's multicultural fabric differ. Although we are all unique, the five elements that make us up are similar. We are all united and tied by it.

"The moment we've all been eagerly awaiting is upon us as Samavaya comes to life. A year of hard work, passion, and dedication from our team has shaped this extraordinary experience, and I extend my sincerest thanks for being an integral part of this journey. Your presence adds a special magic to the tapestry of Samavaya, turning it into more than just a fashion show but a shared celebration of creativity and connection. As the spotlight turns to the runway, let's revel together in the culmination of our collective efforts and the beauty that has emerged from this shared adventure."

A group of nine people, seven women and two men, are posed together in a greenhouse. They are all dressed in traditional Indian clothing, including sarees, lehengas, and kurtas. The women are wearing various colors like pink, white, and blue, and some have intricate embroidery and jewelry. The men are wearing light-colored kurtas and dhotis. The background is filled with lush green plants and the structural framework of the greenhouse.
